WHAT IS LEAN?

At National Training Services we make your business journey ours

National Training Services (NTS) has a focus on the manufacturing, food processing and logistics industries through targeted programs aimed to help our clients. We help to increase productivity through training in the practical implementation of Lean concepts and continuous improvement to ensure that the results are sustained. Our programs can achieve results quickly by focusing on areas with high potential for improvement.

“If you change the way you look at things, the things you look at change”

No matter what type of business you are running, it will rely on properly trained staff. Providing training for your staff is a great way for employees to improve their skills while earning money, and benefit employers through increased productivity. We have flexible assessment and training programs which are conducted in the workplace to minimise disruption to your employees and your business.

WHAT IS LEAN?

The aim of Lean is to establish and maintain a culture of efficiency and continuous improvement within an organisation. Lean relies on these foundational concepts.

Customer focus

Value is only what the customer values.

Eliminating waste

If it is not providing value, then you don't need it.

Smooth flow

Levelling out any variations to achieve a consistent flow of processes.

Efficiency

Managing efficiencies along the supply chain rather than creating departments and silos.

Continuous improvement

Continually finding ways to make improvements, no matter how small.

Respect for people

Valuing the expertise of people who know their work.

LEAN IS NOT

- a simple cost cutting exercise
- a quick fix
- about getting rid of people
- about cutting corners or taking risks

There is no silver bullet, and achieving long-term improvements requires investment and a commitment to make changes to:

- Procedures
- Physical workspaces and layout
- Workplace culture
- Management culture

To get the best results and sustain efficiencies, improvements, and culture change, the business needs to apply changes across the whole organisation.
